

ABSTRACT

A device for use in capturing or collecting debris found in blood vessels or other body lumens. The devices can be fabricated from a tube and include longitudinally and circumferentially extending members. The device can further embody structure that provides enhanced radial opening and angular resistance to 5 collapse and structure for absorbing or modifying forces applied thereto by an operator.

#209622